DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

1. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

2. Claims 1-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

Claims 1-12 cite a method, program storage, and system for generating a random sequence in accordance with a mathematical algorithm. In order for claims to be statutory, claims must either include a practical/physical application or a concrete, useful, and tangible result. However, claims 1-12 merely disclose steps/components for generating a random sequence without further disclosing a practical/physical application or a useful and tangible result. In addition, claims 4-5, 9, and 12 are directed to non-tangible program storage as seen in paragraph [0069] of the original disclosure. Therefore, claims 1-12 are directed to non-statutory subject matter.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Art Unit: 2193

4. Claims 1, 4, 6, and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Ward et al. (U.S. 4,142,240).

Re claim 1, Ward et al. disclose in Figures 1-3 a method for determining the nth state of an n-stage linear feedback shift register (LFSR) (e.g. abstract and Figure 2), comprising: building a look-up table of n-bit states for latch positions of linear feedback shift register (e.g. components 12-15 in Figure 3 as memory table for storing states of LFSR); obtaining a modulo remainder of Nth state (e.g. component 16 in Figure 3 as modulo-2 unit); and generating directly from modulo remainder and n-bit states Nth state (e.g. component 18 in Figure 3 as output unit for code).

Re claim 4, it is a program storage claim of claim 1. Thus, claim 4 is also rejected under the same rationale as cited in the rejection of rejected claim 1.

Re claim 6, it is a system claim of claim 1. Thus, claim 6 is also rejected under the same rationale as cited in the rejection of rejected claim 1.

Re claim 11, Ward et al. further disclose in Figures 1-3 method further comprising responsive to Nth state, selectively executing at least one of password generation, convergent signature analysis, secure credit card processing, system security integration, and encryption encoding and decoding (e.g. col. 1 lines 5-15 and 52-60).

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

a. U.S. Patent No. 4,142,240 to Ward et al. disclose a agile code gene

- b. U.S. Patent No. 5,566,099 to Shimada discloses a pseudorandom number generator.
- c. U.S. Patent No. 5,757,923 to Koopman Jr. discloses a method of generating secret identification numbers.
- d. U.S. Patent No. 6,934,730 to Direen Jr et al. disclose a method and system for generating a transform.
- e. U.S. Patent Publication No. 2005/0044119 to Langin-Hooper et al. disclose a pseudo-random number generator.
